About

FARMPROD is a collective uniting several visual artists around various creative projects that culminated in Brussels in 2003. Each member has the same visual arts education, but develops their own personal style and universe, while simultaneously nourishing a prolific collectivity amongst its members. Today FARMPROD welds its members and their complimentary skills within a collective.

For some twenty years their individual energies have come together, participating in, as well as organizing multiple visual-performance art events, both in Belgium and abroad. Over the course of several exhibitions and performances FARMPROD has become naturally drawn to the development of urban space and the making of frescos.

One important characteristic of their collective work is the desire to develop a homogenous universe, adapting or communing with the nature of the intervention itself and its context.

This publication, richly illustrated with rare and original documents traces the history of Farm Prod, a collective of cosmopolitan street artists.

Twenty years ago, a group of graphic communications students decided to share a living and working space by moving into an isolated farmhouse that quickly became a buzzing hive of creativity. It's the birth of one of the most original groups in urban art in recent years. From squats to artists' studios, we follow the progress of a close-knit team capable of regularly reinventing itself to meet the challenges of an artistic career moving from spontaneous art to official commissions, without ever losing its singular aesthetic and its sense of friendship...

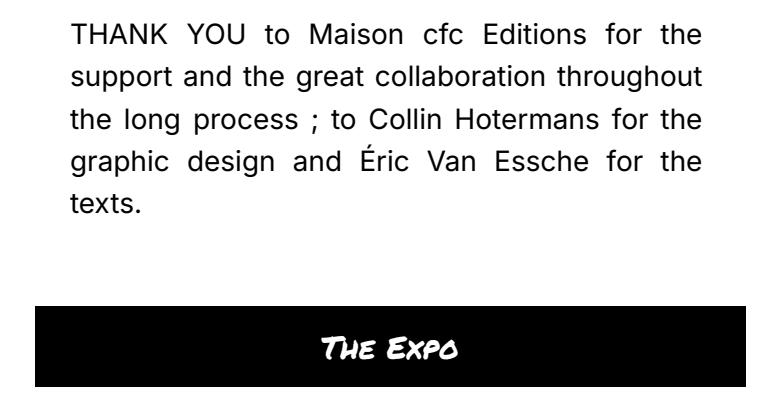

THANK YOU to Maison cfc Editions for the support and the great collaboration throughout the long process ; to Collin Hotermans for the graphic design and Éric Van Essche for the texts.

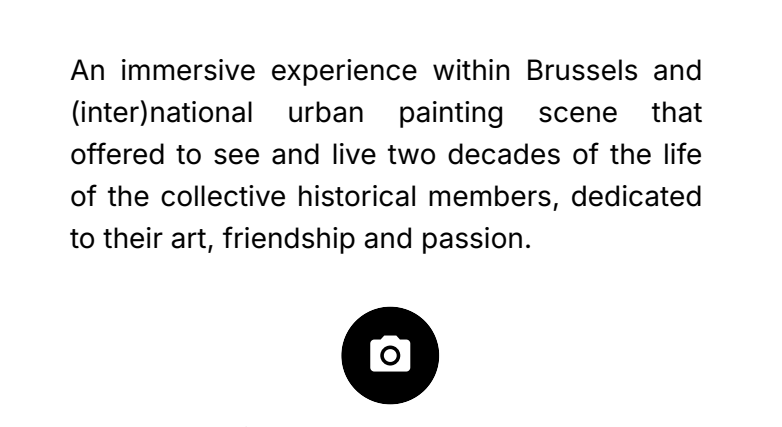

The Expo

An immersive experience within Brussels and (inter)national urban painting scene that offered to see and live two decades of the life of the collective historical members, dedicated to their art, friendship and passion.
